DAATH ORIGINS, a Massive Space RPG Created by One Person, is coming to Steam

Spokane, WA, USA – July 13, 2017 – “I tried to make a dark and deep space game,” says Jeff, the sole developer of DAATH ORIGINS, a retro style space RPG for Windows.

DAATH ORIGINS features HD graphics, programming, story and a 31 song original soundtrack... created by a single person. The release date for DAATH ORIGINS is August 15, 2017, which was revealed today when the Steam store page for the game went live:

The game puts you in command of an interstellar starship that you must guide through the multiverse, while managing a crew with a million fragile human lives to protect or exploit.

“It’s a dark and deep turn-based RPG that was inspired by a mixture of “Star Control 2” and “Final Fantasy 6,” says the solo developer.

Aside from writing and programming the game, the developer also wrote and recorded a 31 song original soundtrack, and made 100 physical editions of the game.
